

Click on photos for more information

Sgt. 1st Class Eric Wilcoxson (center rider) of the Non-Commissioned Officers Academy form a line with two other Soldiers prior to going on a ride after participating in the Camp Parks Motorcycle Safety Day on Saturday April 28. The event was held at building 620 and organized by Sergeant 1st Class Isa Olivarez of the Garrison Directorate of Plans, Training, Mobilization and Security. To see more photo click here.

Sgt. 1st Class Eric Wilcoxson of the U.S. Army Non-Commissioned Officers Academy, here at Camp Parks, proudly presents one of the donated door prizes he received for participating in the Camp Parks motorcycle safety day. The door prize was donated by Blackhawk Customs of Sunnyvale.

Can Akkaya of SuperBike Coach Corp. addresses a group of riders during his braking seminar. Akkaya who is a former pro-racer in the European MotoGP superbike circuit provided participants of the safety class the best practices and techniques for breaking in an emergency situation. One of the notable advice he gave was to practice your motorcycle's emergency braking capabilities before it happens.

Lt. Col David James, Garrison Commander of Camp Parks presents the final door prize to Kevin Cherry of the U.S. Navy during the Parks Motorcycle Safety Stand Day. The prize is a personally autographed book by Arlen Ness who is a nationally recognized custom manufacturer of motorcycles. The Arlen Ness headquarters is located adjacent to the front gate of Parks Reserve Forces Training Area

Sgt. John Hurd of the Livermore Police Department talks about the rules of the road for motorcycle riders during the safety day held on Saturday April 28 at Camp Parks. His briefings included state and local laws pertaining to motorcycle operations and he gave some tried and true advice based on his more than twenty years of personal experience in riding motorcycles.